Cluster 2

Destination: social and economics transformations managing social and economic change

Responses and creating multi-faceted social, economic, technological and cultural transformations

- due to the specificity of our staff and experience in social sciences and humanities - we want to consider the multidisciplinary potential of these sciences to understand relevant contemporary processes of transformation of society, economy, politics
- how to use research and innovation to counter various types of threats, such as: cyber attacks or the fight against current pandemics (here additionally health sciences), demographic developments, migrations, social integration
- to take joint coordinated action, with experienced partners, using available technologies and developing new ones
- especially at the beginning as a partner in a possible consortium
